

Electronic Waste Management Firm Goes Green BMI Receives ISO 14001:2004 Certification

Los Angeles, CA, April 4, 2007 - Beacon Management Inc. (BMI), one of the nations leading electronics recycling firms, has embraced the high environmental standards established by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO). Following a rigorous Registrar audit, BMI recently earned ISO 14001:2004 certification for its environmental management system.

The competitive nature of today's electronics industry has inevitably led to a dramatic increase in the rate at which products become obsolete. BMI partners with electronic manufacturers to manage waste streams consisting of production scrap, returns, and warehouse excess.

Achieving ISO 14001:2004 certification was a natural step for BMI. Their facilities already operated under California's strict EPA guidelines. "Our company has flourished in the most environmentally progressive state in the country for over 15 years. This certification is really a statement of the culmination of BMI's long-standing efforts to bring green services to our clients," said Lawrence Goldberg, company president and founder. "It's good business, and it's good policy," agreed VP, Corporate Development, Shari Goldberg, "Our OEM and high-profile accounts need to know that they are partnering with a company that can mitigate their liabilities while reflecting their values."

BMI was assisted in earning its ISO certification by Change Management Consulting (CMC). No major or minor findings were found during the extensive Registration Audit conducted by SGS, indicating highly successful training and preparation.

"BMI represents a growing trend among manufacturers and recyclers, as well as service organizations, to embrace formal environmental standards," stated Stanley Cherkasky, CMC's Managing Partner. "They have demonstrated that going green is a profitable undertaking for all parties. We are pleased to lend our ISO 14001 expertise to help organizations enjoy the benefits of becoming environment friendly through ISO certification."

Due to concerns about global warming and pollution, organizations worldwide are rapidly moving towards environmental standards. In the process, they have discovered that being environmentally friendly typically boosts bottom-line profits. Developing an environmental management system that is ISO 14001:2004 certified has become the "gold" standard for far-sighted businesses to broadcast both social responsibility and astute management to the marketplace.

BMI Media Contact

Geoff Ziegler

Director, Business Development

Phone: (310) 282-0330 ext. 103

Email: info@bmionline.us

About Beacon Management Inc. (BMI)

BMI is a premium high-volume processor of electronic scrap, waste, and excess material, responsible for the proper disposition of over 36 million pounds of e-waste annually. The company deploys targeted and customized electronic waste management, recycling, and destruction programs for OEM/CEM, government, service/repair, telecommunications and data network, and reverse logistics companies globally. BMI carries core expertise in precious metals reclamation, brand protection, material security, logistical efficiency, and environmentally sensitive disposition. Additional information may be found at the company's Website:

www.bmionline.us.

CMC Media Contact

Stanley Cherkasky

Managing Partner

Phone: (973) 696-7878

Email: scherkasky@cmc-changemanagement.com

About Change Management Consulting, Inc. (CMC)

CMC is a global management consulting, training and research company dedicated to helping organizations improve performance, achieve goals and manage human resources more effectively. As a full-service organization, CMC focuses on corporate governance, organizational and leadership development, strategic planning, and continuous improvement initiatives. Among its offerings, CMC provides customized consulting and training for ISO quality management system and environmental management system certification, Six Sigma and Lean. The company excels in obtaining public funding assistance for its clients. For additional information about CMC, visit the company's Website at www.cmc-changemanagement.com.